C-2 People Present Their Case

Keith Evans, James Pruitt, J. O. Handley and attorney Thomas K. Perry, urged the Carmel Planning Commission to re-consider recommending an amendment to the interim zoning ordinance controlling multiple dwelling construction in the C-2 area at the public hearing on the amendment yesterday afternoon.

Speaking as executive secretary of the C-2 Property Owners group, Perry stressed that Lawrence Livingston Jr. in preparing the Master Plan had assured the Division of Highways that Junipero Street, center of C-2 zone, would be the main entrance to Carmel. His group, he stated, did not think that light industry and four-room-apartments above business uses construction would enhance the main entrance to the city.

Secondly, said Perry, economic advantages should be considered. Pointing out that commercial services tend to be developed in other peninsula communities rather than Carmel. "Do we need more commercial services space?" he asked.

Thirdly, Perry argued, his group, representing 75-80 per cent of the

Both Sides Want Hearthstone Hearing Held In Carmel

Efforts are being made by both parties to have the hearing on the protests against the location transfer of the Hearthstone liquor license held in Carmel instead of Salinas.

The State Board of Alcoholic Beverage Control has notified the protestants that the hearing has been set for February 11 in Salinas.

Harold Ireland, one of the individuals who has protested the transfer, told the Pine Cone that he had requested the ABC to hold the hearing in Carmel but the board had informed him that the request must come from all parties concerned, otherwise the hearing must be held in the county seat.

Carmel Martin, Jr., attorney for the Hearthstone, informed the Pine Cone he had written the ABC board that his clients would prefer to have the hearings held in Carmel.

Had the protest come from the city council, the hearing would have been set for Carmel in the first place. The council, on advice of its former city attorney, Thomas Perry that "the city doesn't have a case" did not protest.

One city councilman, Carl Patnude, thought the city did have a case, and outvoted by the other councilmen, protested to the ABC as an individual. A number of the Carmel citizens also filed protests, as did the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

The Hearthstone's application involves a move from its present location on the north side of Ocean Avenue, west of Dolores Street, to the former Joe's Taxi Depot at Sixth and Junior, across the street from Devendorf Plaza, and across the plaza from the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Are You Sure, Boys, The Siren Has Been Thoroughly Tested?

Carmel Volunteer Fire Department is having a noisy and educational week which started Monday morning with the unwinsome blasts of the new fire siren and has continued with drills for the 35 members every evening.

The drills are held at the firehouse under the supervision of a Mr. Sellers from the state department of adult education, division of fire training, and have to do with handling small tools and salvage equipment. The sessions run from 7:00 to 10:00 o'clock and each is initiated with a "try out" of the new siren.

The last drill will be held tomorrow night, Fire Chief William Smith promises the community.

CARMEL RED CROSS QUOTA, $25,196 FOR 1957

Corum Jackson, chairman of the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross, called a committee meeting Tuesday afternoon to announce that Carmel's quota for the 1957 Red Cross fund drive is $25,196.

Chairman for this year's drive is Mrs. William Arley Smith, announced Jackson, and starting date is March 1.

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

A good audience attended the Chamber Music Concert at the Craft Studios on Sunday evening. The program's length this time was right. The group of players in the society was augmented in order to construct a chamber string orchestra, which, strangely, found the members listed on the program below the executive committee and patrons. Bach's Violin Concerto in A minor, for which Jerald Slavich was soloist and Gilbert Boyer conductor, needed the larger string ensemble composed of violinists David Hagemeyer, Charlotte Perry, Norma Del Chiaro, Eiko Yoshizato; Lorell McCann and Marie Sale, violas; Carol Marsh, cello; Edwin W. Culver, bass; and Clifton Robertson, piano, several of whom had not previously appeared in these concerts, though belonging to the Monterey Symphony Orchestra personnel. Boyer conducted with admirable precision and Slavich brilliantly played the solo part.

Mozart's D major Quartet for flute, violin, viola and cello, performed by Hagemeyer, Sale, Marsh and Mitzi Erickson, flutist, was ably sustained particularly by the flutist in the major melodic outlines of the charmingly rhythmic and harmonious music, interwoven by the other instruments' parts, including an effective pizzicato interlude. Long practicing together would arrive at more polished effects, but this erstwhile quartet was highly commendable and enjoyed.

A modern Sonata for Four Hands on One Piano by Poulenc, played by Angie Machado and Clifton Robertson was a boisterous and almost savage composition that contained very little musical interest though both players certainly made the most of its bizarre

Green Belt Annexation Offered City

Surrounded with maps, offered control of 400 acres of "green belt" through annexation to Carmel, complete building control of a 37 acre shopping center, and bombarded with opinions of property owners and lawyers, the Carmel Planning Commission stood firm yesterday afternoon and refused to take any action until Monday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

Then in adjourned session, after further study, they may be able to say whether they will recommend any proposed freeway route South of the Carmel Valley interchange to the County Planning Commission; ask the State Division of Highways for a new hearing on a freeway route South of the interchange; or ask the city council to annex 437 acres to Carmel.

Thomas K. Perry, attorney for Carmel Properties Company urged quick freeway route endorsement action from the Carmel Planning Commission as the County Planning Commission on Tuesday afternoon may act definitely on a freeway route. "We have time troubles," he stated.

Perry pointed out, with map, that in 1955 the City of Carmel approved the route now planned to be used by the State Division of Highways, but, in view of the fact that the Carmel Planning Commission presumably now favors the Livingston Master Plan freeway route South of the Carmel Valley interchange, the Commission could ask for a new hearing on the route before the Division of Highways.

Then he came up with the annexation offer. Carmel Properties Company, said Perry, is willing to have their proposed 37 acre shopping center, opposite Mission Fields, and 400 "green belt" acres, which they own, stretching from Aguajito to Rio Vista subdivision lines, east of present Highway No. 1 become a part of Carmel.

They "might buy more land to the north" and "throw it in" if the Commission recommends that the City of Carmel annex the 437 offered acres, added Perry.

William L. Hudson, member of the Carmel Properties Company, told the Planning Commission he was "very interested" in the annexation proposal and added, that the valley "intersection island" was included in the annexation suggestion.

Perry pointed out that the Carmel Planning Commission would have complete planning control of the annexed shopping center and a "green belt", and that the County Planning Commission on Tuesday might delay deciding the route of the freeway south of the Carmel Valley inter-change if they knew that the Carmel Planning Commission recommends the City of Carmel be extended to include Carmel Properties Company's 437 offered acres.

Then Attorney Ralph Thompson, representing Philip Hatton started talking, with map.

Pointer in hand, Thompson showed that his client owns 69 acres to the north of the Carmel Properties Company's proposed

Color Committee Takes "Heat" Off Stuart Mitchell

Nobody has complained about Carmel School District Superintendent Stuart Mitchell's taste in color since Paul McKinstry expressed aesthetic pain at the sky blue paint job on the kindergarten buildings at Sunset School (about three years ago) and Mr. Mitchell is seeing to it that nobody does. At the regular January school board meeting Tuesday night, he informed the trustees that a color committee had chosen the interior decor for the three new high school classrooms which will be ready for occupancy next week.

"I just laid the ground rules," said Mr. Mitchell.

The committee, made up of Art Teacher Richard Hagadorn, Architect Thomas Elston, High School Principal Warren Edwards and the teachers who will conduct classes in the new rooms, Mrs. Mariquita Brey, Miss Enid Larson and Donald Craig, picked out the colors.

The ground rules concerned eye-saving "reflector factors"; otherwise the committee had a free hand which they exercised in this manner:

Miss Larson's science room: flame pink walls, terra cotta color "black boards" and deeper pink counter tops, white ceiling and fixtures. Mrs. Brey's English room: one wall, mediterranean blue, the others, California lime; wall panelling, cinnamon; cream ceilings.

Cottage To Leave Dolores Street After 54 Years

The little redwood Dummage cottage, built in 1903, will be moved this weekend from its lot on the west side of Dolores Street, south of Ocean, to the corner of San Carlos and Ninth Streets. Michael Eagleton has bought the building from Mrs. George H. Linsley, daughter of the late Mary Dummage, Carmel pioneer. He will place it north of the two red-painted houses which he already owns at the corner, facing San Carlos and Sunset School. The larger house on the property is the former Gillette home. Several years ago Eagleton moved the old All Saints' rectory from Monte Verde Street, next to the present city hall, to the west of the Gillette home. When the Dummage house is added to these buildings, Eagleton will own three of the oldest

PADRES CLIPPED BY HOLLISTER AND GILROY

It was a long weekend of basketball for the Carmel High cagers as the Padres lost a pair to Hollister on Friday night and continued the losing spree at Gilroy Saturday night as the Mustangs doubled up on them at the new Gilroy pavilion. Hollister topped the Padre varsity, 44 to 37, and edged the Padrecitos, 38 to 34. The Gilroy varsity whipped the Padres, 56 to 44, and ran over the little Padres, 56 to 23.

Clyde Klauman's 18 points kept the Padres in the game against Hollister but the fine performance by the senior forward couldn't offset the fine all around play of Hollister's Tom Mead who meshed 21 points and was the game's top rebounder. The Padres made several challenges for the lead during the game but couldn't contain the brilliant shots of the quick Haybaler pivot man.

The Carmel lightweights made one of the finest comeback performances ever seen at the Carmel gym as they battled back from a 21-point deficit to tie up the game in the final stages. The Hayseeds came through with a two-pointer just 30 seconds before the final buzzer to eke out a welcome victory over the hard-trying Padrecitos. It was the fine defensive play of Jack and Ronnie Faia and John Eiksman which rattled the jittery Hollister Babes in the final quarter and made possible the amazing Padricito comeback.

At Gilroy Saturday night, the Carmel lightweights were no match for the outsize Gilroy squad which controlled both backboards and ran away from the slower Carmel lads.

Gilroy's varsity showed the Carmel rooters why the Mustangs are undefeated in league play this season by toying with the Padres for a 56-44 win. Paced by Tom Smith, a clever playmaking guard who chipped in with 28 points, the Mustangs broke in front at the beginning of the game and had control all the way. The Padres closed to within 4 points in the third period but dropped out of contention again as the diminutive Smith poured through the points. Charley Dawson tanked 15 markers to lead the Carmel scorers and did a fine job of rebounding against Gilroy's Julian Aguilar, a cinch all-league center. Don Smith and Bill Hicks played outstanding defense for the Padres and came through with clutch baskets to keep the red and grey squad in the game.

CARMEL HOOPSTERS PLAY THREE GAMES AT PG FRIDAY NIGHT

Carmel High's basketball season has been less than a success in the won and loss column this year but the Padres have a chance to make it a good season at Pacific Grove Fri. night where they meet the arch-rival Breakers in three games. At 5:30, Carmel's Firehouse Five unit matches baskets with the PG junior-varsity for the third time this season. The Carmel lads have won two from Coach Jim Lebeck's gang and would like to add number three Friday night. The lightweight teams take the floor at 7 o'clock and the Padrecitos will be going all out for win number one for the current season. The Pacific Grove Babes won rather handily in the first meeting but lost some of their star performers at the league weigh-in and this one looks to be a toss-up. Pacific Grove's varsity has played much the same type of ball as that displayed by the Padres-in-and-out. In one game the Breakers look unbeatable and in the next game they will beat themselves.

Starting lineups for the Carmel squads in Friday night's triple-header will be as fallows: Firehouse Five: Art Wilkerson, Joe Mason, Mal Burdis, Tim O'Shea, and Phil Durbrow. Lightweights: Jack Faia, Walter Helm, Frank Wallace, Jim Lee, and Pete Willcox. Varsity: Clyde Klauman, Bill Wallace, Charley Dawson, Dale Dawson, and Bill Hicks.

BICYCLE RODEO AT SUNSET FIELD SATURDAY

Recreation Director Bill Wakefield and his staff will conduct a bicycle rodeo for boys and girls from grades 1 to 8 at Sunset Field Saturday afternoon. Grades 1 through 4 will go through their paces from 1 o'clock until 2; the 5ith and 6th grades will take the field from 2 to 3; 7th and 8th from 3 to 4. Before competing in the rodeo, cyclists are required to take a written test on rules of cycling, have a safety check which will precede the rodeo, and get a licenses for their bike. Licenses will be available at Sunset Field on Saturday.

Through the courtesy of the Carmel Kiwanis Club, awards will be given to high-scoring cyclists in each division of the rodeo. Carmel's Police Chief, Clyde Klaumann, will be on hand to help judge the events and keep the cyclists informed on the safety standards which should be observed by all cyclists. While speed racing will not be on the program there is a race which should appeal to all contestants—one which finds the winner being able to navigate his bicycle the slowest.

BASEBALL CLINIC AT PACKER STADIUM SATURDAY AFTERNOON

One of the finest baseball clinics ever offered in this area is scheduled for the Salinas Packer ball park this Saturday afternoon where major league stars, scouts, managers, and umpires will band together for the sole purpose of imparting baseball information to those who want it. Open to the public free of charge, the clinic gets underway at 1:00 o'clock with demonstrations by professional players on how to play each of the positions on the diamond. Billy Martin, a real come-through Yankee, leads the parade of professional players who will be on hand to show the public how the game should be played. Microphones will be set up on the diamond so descriptions of the plays being made can easily be followed by the spectators. This clinic affords an excellent opportunity for coaches of Little League, Babe Ruth League, high school, and semi-pro ball to observe the proper fundamentals and carry the word back to the players.

WATER VALVES

The valve with which you are most familiar is the faucet in your home which holds the water back or permits it to flow according to your wishes. But the faucet is only one of a great number of valves in the water system which serves you.

Valves are important items in the operation of a waterworks since they control the volume and direction of water flow from its source to you. Valves represent a substantial investment, their cost varying according to size and type . . . very large ones running as high as the price of an expensive automobile.

Free Installation Of Dog Licenses At City Hall

Has the dog population of Carmel fallen off 75 percent? Arthur Plaxton, city tax and license collector, doesn't think so, though only 95 people, out of the 400 who should have, have paid their $3.00 fee for a 1957 dog license, which was due and payable on January 1.

They've forgotten or just haven't got around to it yet, Mr. Plaxton thinks. He has brought a pair of pliers to city hall, and will install the licenses if the owners will bring the dog along.

"It's a new service we're offering," says Mr. Plaxton, "I like dogs."

A. Alkemade

Mrs. Auguste Alkemade died of a heart condition on Friday night in the ambulance en route to a hospital from her home in Carmel Valley.

Under the sponsorship of Hope Alexander, with whom she lived, Mrs. Alkemade came to the United States on a visitor's permit seven months ago. She was 57 years old, born in Sternau, Germany, April 21, 1899. She was a member of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church in the Valley.

Rosary was recited on Tuesday evening in Mission Mortuary.

Requiem Mass was celebrated on Wednesday morning in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in Carmel Valley, after rites at Mission Mortuary. Burial took place in the Monterey Catholic Cemetery.

Edward Goldstein

Edward Haskell Goldstein was found dead on Monday morning in his car parked off Highway 1 six miles below Big Sur. County Deputy Coroner Christopher Hill said his death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning. A rubber hose from the exhaust pipe led through the trunk and rear seat into the car. He was found after he had been dead about ten hours by a state highway maintenance man.

Mr. Goldstein was formerly co-owner with Wilbert Fromhold of Dinah's Shack Restaurant, Palo Alto. A note to Fromhold was found in the car and one to the police.

Funeral services were held in Los Angeles in Groman's Mortuary. Mission Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

Helene Peck

Miss Helene Dresser Peck, retired librarian, died Tuesday morning in a local hospital after a short illness. She came to Carmel to live in 1951 and shared a home on Second Avenue between Guadalupe and Santa Rita Streets with her sister, Miss Jean F. Peck, who survives her.

Miss Peck was born on October 14, 1890, in St. Paul Minnesota. Before moving to Carmel she was a resident of Oakland.

Funeral services are this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium with Dr. Joseph Ewing pastor of the Carmel Presbyterian Church officiating. Inurnment follows in El Carmelo Cemetery.

Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

SUPT. MITCHELL ON THE GO

Carmel School District Superintendent Stuart Mitchell started on a round of meetings and conferences Wednesday morning which included: Tri County Superintendents meeting in Watsonville, Wednesday; Co-operative Clinic on revision and simplification of the educational code, Berkeley, today; Monterey County Reorganization Committee meeting in Salinas tonight. At the latter, to be held in Supervisors chambers in the county courthouse at 8:00 o'clock. Drummond McCunn, president of the Contra Costa County Junior College district, will tell the Monterey County committee about his county's experience in organizing a county-wide junior college district, an idea Monterey County committee has been flirting with for several years but gets bogged down "how to do it."

His and Hers Next Production At Players Circle

His and Hers, the Golden Bough Players' new production, will open at the Casanova Street Playhouse on February 1, under the direction of Charles Thomas.

The new play is a fast paced and sophisticated comedy of modern New York, concerning two young playwrights whose once happy marriage crashes in the wake of their repeated failure to produce a Broadway hit. While the dialogue is sparkling and witty, the underlying moral is unmistakable; material success is not nearly as important as love in a marriage.

His and hers was written by Fay and Michael Kanin, authors of the earlier Broadway success, Goodbye my Fancy. It was originally produced at the 48th Street Theatre, New York, in 1954.

Green Belt Annexation Offered City of Carmel

shopping center. Hatton thinks his land "ideal for a shopping center" accessible from the proposed Division of Highways valley interchange, on the "best" freeway route plan, and his family has had the land, which he now owns, for 50 years.

Carmel Valley Property Owners Association is prepared to recommend this route to the County Planning Commission on Tuesday, too, according to Thompson.

The Livingston Plan route had been "thrown into the dispute to benefit one property owner" said Thompson. Hatton had thought there was "finality" to the adoption of the freeway route approved by Carmel in 1955 and had received "no notice" that the Livingston route, permitting free access to Carmel Properties Company shopping center, was to be considered officially. If the present Division of Highways plan is accepted by the county, there will only be access to the Carmel Properties Company's shopping center by following present Highway 1 north to the interchange, pointed out Thompson on his map.

Then he asked how the road following the Livingston Plan, east of the State's proposed route, enclosing Carmel Properties Company's shopping center with Mission Fields, was "to get back to the bridge?"

"Modern freeways have a curve design" said Thompson and produced another map. This showed a possible third freeway route south of the interchange, thought up by the county. This route curves gradually and gracefully much further to the east than the Livingston route, across the Odello artichoke ranch and through the foothills of the Fish ranch to enter Highway 1 at about Bay School.

"I will have to live with this creation, I can't move back to Pebble Beach," stated Stuyvesant Fish at this point.

"I think changing the freeway is unneccessary and uncalled for, a desecration of the lower valley for one property owner."

"I am diametrically opposed to the change," continued Fish, "I know my neighbors, people of Carmel, Carmel Valley and the Highlands feel this way, too.

Emilio Odello then told the Planning Commision that this change in the freeway route "put two highways through the 'green belt' ".

Last speaker was Jack Martin, rancher, of Carmel and Carmel Valley who stated he proposes to have a "commercial establishment" in the Hatton shopping center.

"My family has lived here for 100 years," emphasized Martin, "I have a stake in this community."

"I am also interested in food production. Agricultural land is being used up rapidly. Even if artichokes are not grown at the valley mouth the land has agricultural value."

"As a taxpayer," ended Martin, "I do not subscribe to any freeway route change that will add over a million dollars to the tax bill."

Then the meeting was adjourned until Monday at 4:00 o'clock and everyone gathered for a closer look at all the maps.

Mrs. Linsley plans to build a store on the vacated land on Dolores Street. Her property extends along Dolores Street from Tom's Cafe to Ocean Avenue.

William T. Dummage, original owner of the property and builder of the house, was Carmel's first plumber settling here in 1898. Mrs. Dummage ran Carmel's first restaurant in a tent on the property now occupied by the Corner Cupboard. She lived in the Dolores Street house until her death four years ago. Since then it has been used as a studio by the painter Ling Fu Yang.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

OVERCOMING INERTIA

The New York Times has one of the best conservation columns in the conutry. Written by John B. Oakes, it covers a wide variety of subjects with very discerning commentary. The January 6 column, devoted to a review of conservation issues during 1956, is an especially comprehensive one.

Having already discussed most of these topics in previous columns, I am going to take as my text this week the two introductory paragraphs in Mr. Oakes' column. They offer cause for much optimism on the part of conservationists and at the same time suggest the necessity of intensifying effort on all fronts and bringing recruits into the conservation army.

The first sentence reads: "The most significant development in the conservation of our country's natural resources during the last year has been the growth in public understanding of its importance".

This growth in public understanding is really all that is necessary for the winning of conservation battles. Experience has proved over and over again that once the public really grasps the significance of any conservation issue, they will go all out for it and against any special interests that stand in the way of achieving conservation goals. Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot found this out 50 years ago and since then it has become almost a truism.

Mr. Oakes goes on to say: "This awareness shows itself in many ways, in none more effectively than through the exercise of political power on behalf of conservation goals, and through the political response that has actually been achieved".

Congressmen and government officials are certainly responsive to public wishes in conservation matters. If then there is enough growth in public interest in the issues at stake, all that is necessary to get results is for the informed public to take pen in hand and let their representatives in Congress and state legislatures know how they feel. This is mainly a problem of overcoming inertia.

An excellent illustration of this is in the recent generous appropriations that Congress has made for the proper maintenance of the national parks and forests. Over 50 million people visit the national parks each year and almost that many go to the national forests. When a small but rapidly increasing percentage of these visitors write to their congressmen about the sad neglect of our public lands since the war, action is produced in a short time. If such a fine demonstration of overcoming inertia could be given in other fields of conservation activity, all the worries of dedicated conservationists would be over.

Mr. Oakes ends his introductory remarks with a suggestion that is highly satisfying to me. He writes: "The best way the individual citizen can take part in this movement is to join one of the conservation organizations — National Audubon Society, Izaak Walton League, Wilderness Society, National Parks Association, to name a few at random".

This is the next step after the initial overcoming of inertia. I would amend his suggestion to read "at least one". Dues are not large and they all include magazine subscriptions. Information about them can be obtained at most public libraries. What better way could there be to start 1957!

Editor's note: Information about joining the National Parks Association can be obtained by telephoning Mr. C. Edward Graves, MA 4-3232.

Karl Schnabel Here In Concert, February 7

Under the management of Margaret Lial, Karl Ulrich Schnabel will appear in piano recital at Sunset Auditorium, Thursday, February 1. Schnabel, son of Artur Schnabel, has won world-wide recognition on his own merits as pianist. He has appeared in solo recitals, and broadcasts, with leading orchestras in Britain, the U.S.A., Argentina, Austria, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Denmark, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Poland, Russia, Switzerland and Uruguay. He has recorded the works of Bach, Mozart, Schubert, Chopin, Mendelssohn, Weber, Liszt and Debussy. He has given chamber music concerts in Europe, North and South America, and piano duo concerts with his wife, the American pianist, Helen Fogel.

In 1955, also under the management of Margaret Lial, Karl Ulrich Schnabel appeared in recital in Carmel. At that time, Mary Lindsay-Oliver in The Carmel Pine Cone, wrote, "Of all the piano recitals heard this season and for some time past, the one by Karl Ulrich Schnabel . . . stands at the pinnacle."

At Sunset Auditorium on February 7 Schnabel will play from his preferred repertoire: Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, Liszt and other masters.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

February and March are both going to bring us some noisy winds and storms and instead of objecting to these old customs we really should be glad. Spring has ever been the period for thorough housecleaning and we can remember the days of our grandparents and how our homes were turned inside out. Carpets were put on the clothes line to be beaten to the point of exhaustion . . . furniture found itself leaping from room to room . . . and the family was in a state of perpetual turmoil.

Nature goes through the same process. Without wind the trees would never be relieved of their dead foliage. Can you imagine the young green leaves trying to make their appearance through a cover of dead and yellowed foliage? Wind, to growing things, is the great game of setting-up exercises. Limbs are stretched, dead wood is ripped from the branches, and wind-fall is swept off to the lower valleys. Right after our last storm, a few days ago, did you notice that the roads were covered with fallen debris? Just you wait for our next blow and away will go all that debris. What was once rubbish, on our roads and lawns, the wind turns into helpful mulch which lays itself as a carpet upon fields and meadows.

From my living room window I can look out upon a grove of ancient live oak trees, and come a good, healthy wind storm I spend hours watching these trees dance the dance of Spring.

There has even been music written about this process, and all piano students have been confronted with that lovely melody, Sindig's "Rustle of Spring". In that music I can hear the rustle of the leaves, the creek of branches, and the merry dance of the trees.

After our first Spring blows, the sap begins to flow in growing things, and life is restored to all deciduous flora that has spent the winter months in deep slumber. So . . . don't let us frown and growl at the wind. Let us join in the festival of revival and in the words of the poet . . .

"...and then my heart with pleasure fills,
and dances with the daffodils."

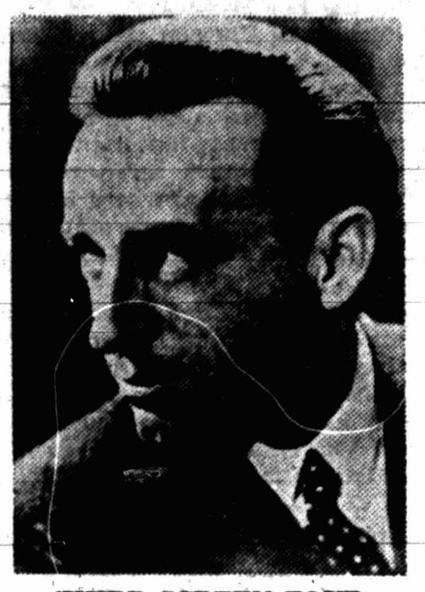
Lanz Preview Of Spring Fashion Show Tomorrow

At the preview-of-spring fashion show to be given by Lanz tomorrow, Friday, January 25, at the Pine Inn, costumes for day and after dark in the new lilac tones will be featured, announces Mrs. Bianca Kulka, Carmel manager for Lanz. "The lilac tones are being stressed by Lanz for 1957," Mrs. Kulka said. "Not only in party, cocktail and late-day frocks, but in casual and street costumes will the almost universally becoming lilac shades appear."

Elaine Lynn, Fashion Consultant for Lanz, will fly from Los Angeles for tomorrow's fashion show at the Pine Inn. Miss Lynn will be available during the show to answer questions of spectators and to provide data on the new, 1957 Lanz costumes to be modeled. Five models will appear in the show, displaying a variety of Lanz dresses, sportswear, afternoon, party, dinner and after-dark ensembles.

In addition to 1957's important lilac tones, Lanz will show also spring costumes in basic beige, grey, navy, and some models in vivid hues. In the collection to be shown will be many frocks and "separates" inspired by Austrian folk art designs, but adapted by Lanz designers to the taste of American women.

The Lanz fashion show will be held in the Pine Inn Garden Restaurant from 12 to 2:00 o'clock with a first complete modeling of costumes during the first hour of luncheon, and a repeat show in the hour from 1:00 to 2:00.



THIRD SCREEN TOUR

The Monterey Peninsula and National Audubon Societies will present Animals at Night in Color, a full length motion picture, on Friday night at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium. This is a sequel to the black and white Midnight Movies which brought Howard Cleaves nationwide fame.

Mr. Cleaves started taking nature photos in 1906. His first wildlife motion pictures were taken in 1913 under the tutelage of Thomas A. Edison. At Harvard he studied natural sciences as a special student.

He has made a "diving suit" for his camera, a watertight box with floodlights on the side. The camera is operated by remote control, taking pictures through a sheet of plate glass. He used this to take sequences of diving ducks.

Another of Mr. Cleaves' innovations is a shoulder frame of powerful lights. This connected by a long cable to his small generator enables him to approach and sometimes capture small animals, blinded by the intense light. At other times he has the light mounted on his tripod in the bow of a boat, thus being able to take pictures of water wildlife.

It is said that wild animals work on two shifts, day and night. Mr. Cleaves brings us, for the first time, the workings of the night shift in color. This is the third Audubon Screen Tour this year. A dinner at Holiday Inn at 6:00 o'clock will honor the speaker. Call MA 4-6433 for dinner reservations.

Owen Baptized Sunday

Owen Edwin Baylis, son of Lieutenant j.g. and Mrs. Nathaniel Baylis, was christened on Sunday afternoon in Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, by the Reverend Canon David Forbes. Godparents were Owen's aunt, Lucinda Lloyd, from Carmel; Anders Field of New York; and Lieutenant Edwin Vrieze of Pensacola, Florida. Lieutenant Vrieze, at sea with his submarine, was unable to be present at the ceremony and was represented by a proxy, Peter Gavigan of San Francisco.

Mrs. Grady Spends Month Here

Mrs. E. M. Grady leaves the latter part of January to return to her home in La Grange, Illinois, after a month in Carmel as the guest of her brother-in-law and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Grady. Former friends of Mrs. Grady from La Grange, now Carmel residents, have entertained for her during her stay here. Among those who have enjoyed reminiscing with Mrs. Grady about their former home town are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dolan, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Biery, Mrs. Jessie Williams Crain and Mr. Robert Barnes.

Igor George Born

Mr. and Mrs. George Ganzjuk are parents of a second son, Igor George, born at the Peninsula Community Hospital on January 14. Their older boy is six-year-old Alex, a pupil at Woods School. Mr. Ganzjuk has been a Russian instructor at the Army Language School for the past five years.

Lew Welcomed As Mac's Partner

Friends gathered in the Dolores Street office of P. A. and Lew E. McCreery from 2:00-5:00 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon to welcome Lew officially as a partner in his father's insurance business.

Many of those present remembered Lew as a little tow-headed tyke in kindergarten at Sunset School on through High School where, still-tow-headed, he played on the football and baseball teams and was a member of the swimming team, graduating in 1948.

Lew graduated from the University of Hawaii as a business major, playing on their football team and with a place on the swimming team. Then service as a lieutenant in the Marines, a year's training in insurance in San Francisco, and back home the first of this year to join his father's firm.

Now Lew has a home in Carmel Woods, and with his wife, the former Ann Whittaker, and two daughters, Kathleen and Diane, is settled here for good.

"I haven't had a vacation in 28 years," says his father, "I haven't been to San Francisco since 1944 and last week I went to Pacific Grove for the first time in four years." This makes former mayor P. A. McCreery Carmel's unofficial all-time loyal happy stay-at-home citizen, happy about son Lew coming back to Carmel to be his partner, too.

CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

Availability today of the healing power of divine Truth will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Christ Jesus' healing of the "woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself" (Luke 13) will be among the Scriptural passages read from the King James Version of the Bible. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Truth."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following selection will be among those read (495:1): "God will heal the sick through man, whenever man is governed by God. Truth casts out error now as surely as it did nineteen centuries ago. All of Truth is not understood; hence its healing power is not fully demonstrated."

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Several noteworthy books have been added to the library's collection during the past week and are now ready for borrowing. One of these is The Bible As History by Werner Keller, a German writer in the field of science, with an especial interest in archeology. Working with several noted archeologists, he gathered materials for this book which documents the Bible as a great work of history. All through the book, passages from the Bible are quoted in conjunction with the accounts of excavations and translations of writings found on walls and tablets. This book has the strange effect on the reader of making the Bible come alive and at the same time tying in archeological findings with Biblical facts already known.

In direct contrast to the Keller book is one by Andre Hodier entitled Jazz, It's Evolution and Essence. The author is a French musician who was for a time a student at the Paris Conservatory of Music where he won several prizes for his knowledge of more conventional forms of music. His interest in jazz is of long duration. He begins this book with a history of jazz, and goes on from there to discuss his subject, and its devotees, from many angles.

Alan Paton, famous for his books on Africa and the African people, has recently published a book entitled South Africa in Transition. It consists of a collection of striking photographs with their explanatory captions written by Paton. We noticed one photograph which looked to be that of Father Trevor Huddleston, the priest who wrote another book on Africa called Naught For Your Comfort, which was published late last year.

Once upon a time, and this is a true story, there was a man named Joshua Slocum, who sailed alone around the world in a small sloop called the Sea Spray. His journal of the lonely journey is said to have found a firm place in American letters. Later on the captain and his small ship were lost at sea and no trace of either was ever found. Now Walter Teller has written a biography of this strange man, which has been called The Search for Captain Slocum. It is the unusual story of an eccentric man.

Now that winter has come, the best season for arm-chair travelling is upon us, and a new itinerary may be followed by reading The Exploration of the Valley of the Amazon by William Herndon.

There are eight new novels this week, two of which are mysteries by well known writers of mystery tales. They are all listed on the bulletin board.

Tinted light: new beauty for your home and you

PINK YELLOW GREEN BLUE

Setting by W & J Sloane, San Francisco

Choose one of these flattering colors. Or try them all—to accent the beauty of your home (and you). Wonderful things happen—for instance:

PINK: Flatters your complexion . . . brings out hidden beauty . . . makes lipstick, nail polish even more glamorous and exciting.

YELLOW: Fills a room with sunlight . . . warm, intimate, gay . . . brings out the warm tones of brass, copper and wood.

GREEN: Brings the cool, green quiet of the forest inside your home. Freshens greens, blues and yellows.

BLUE: Adds airy new dimensions to rooms . . . makes you look more radiantly alive . . . more youthful in appearance.

P.S. Don't forget white bulbs—best for study lamps, reading or close visual work . . . best to bring out true colors. With P. G. and E.'s bargain rates for electricity you can have good light everywhere (white or tinted)! Why not stock up on light bulbs next time you shop?

C-2 People Present Their Case At Meeting

property owners in C-2, was worried that the proposed upstairs only dwelling units did not fulfill public health and safety demands.

"There was little planning in Carmel at first," said Keith Evans, "the town grew excellently. In the past ten years there has been need for more planning but the restrictions have not been burdensome. Why now, in the relatively undeveloped C-2 zone, should there be the most restrictions?"

"Property owners in C-2 are the same people who helped build this town, they have done nothing detrimental to the city or their own property. Why can't they be trusted with C-2 development?" he continued.

"The restrictions depreciate C-2 property values one third and possibly one half," added Evans. "This reduces assessment and tax income for the city. The city needs tax money. Residential property owners are taking all the taxation they can stand. The C-2 zone properly developed would be a source of revenue to the city."

He could not replace his "slum" property in the area with "no return".

"It will pay me to keep those buildings as they are for 15 or 20 years rather than contemplate economically unfeasible construction such as the Schultz building," ended Evans.

James Pruitt felt that the 1,000 square feet per dwelling unit demand of the Planning Commission was sufficient control of motel construction in C-2, change of zoning was not necessary."

C-2 terrain made it impossible to develop a "Fremont or Munras type of development," Pruitt stated, "the land lies in such a way that only broken-type construction is possible."

J. O. Handley said that in the 33 years he has lived in Carmel "it has grown beautifully." "Had there been rigid restrictions 33 years ago no one would like the town today. We need control now but only two motels have been built on Junipero Street in the past ten years, if motels could have been built profitably on Junipero Street it would now be a motel row?"

Handley was of the opinion that on 100 foot wide Junipero the same setbacks were not required as on other streets. The front foot value of property on Junipero Street was too valuable to have it wasted. He also favored construction not demanding off-street parking.

Assured that the public hearing was closed Perry asked Planning Commissioners to study facts and figures he would present to them concerning the Schultz building which is thought at present to be economically unfeasible to build. He also suggested that the city think about beautifying the six lots they own on Junipero Street in the C-2 zone, and consider staggered setbacks throughout the area.

rhythms and harsh tonalities. We would like to hear these players in a contribution more worthy of their good pianism.

The strongest performance of the evening came in the Quintet for Piano, two violins and cello by Dvorak which contained an Andante con moto of great beauty and contour, though all four movements proved inspiring. This was played by Boyer, Slavich, Hagemeyer, Lorell McCann and Constantin Vadetsky, cellist. I could not see the piano from where I sat but it sounded as though the top would have been better down, even though the piano as leading instrument was brilliantly played by Boyer as well as by the rest of the quintet. However, accoustics play funny tricks and are bound to be varied in the cornered Craft Center! In any case, the whole performance was gratifying from beginning to end, as each player seemed to enjoy this composer's work as much as the audience. They were enthusiastically recalled and thanked for their wholehearted contributions to music on the peninsula.

Color Committee Takes "Heat" Off Stuart Mitchell

terra cotta blackboards. Donald Craig's Spanish room: yellow walls with salmon pink wood work and terra cotta blackboards.

Mr. Mitchell confessed to the Pine Cone that he did not entirely withdraw from the interior decorating activities. "I chose the tile for the floors in the toilets," he said. "And I didn't pick out pink for boys and blue for girls. I chose the school colors, red and grey. Nobody can complain about that."

There were other weighty matters for Mr. Mitchell to report to the board.

Sunset auditorium stage lighting system is being improved; a fire alarm system and other fire safety devices will be installed; a new floor for Sunset stage is contemplated, and eventually, a new curtain and an accoustical paint job. Also, a stage manager is to be employed as soon as a satisfactory person can be found for the job.

Milton Mayer, writer and field service representative for the Quakers, created something of a sensation with a letter requesting that, since recruiting officers from various departments of the armed forces come to the high school to advise the draft-age boys on compulsory military training, someone be made available to advise conscientious objectors as to their rights under the draft bill.

The board decided to turn the problem over to the district attorney.

Four happy people among the non-certificated employees received a total of $1226 increase in salary between now and June, in addition to the blanket raise of $150 for each non-certificated employee.

Director of Transportation, Attendance Clerk, Sunset Secretary and Superintendent's Secretary were the recipients of the additional boost, which was recommended by the salary committee of fellow employees and Carmel board members because their work requires special skills.
